

Dan Neal

I oppose charging fees for access to digital information. As a journalist for nearly three decades in Wyoming, I have appreciated the legal mandate that the Wyoming public has a right to access the records its public servants create. The DEQ should stand by this long-standing policy and reject rules that will make access to public information more difficult and potentially too expensive for many people. Public agencies should work for the public; not against the public.