

Bob Tschetter

Processes for capturing methane are very cost effective. Recent data from the International Energy Agency suggest that up to 45% of wasted methane emissions can be prevented at no net cost.