Having too many levels can be confusing. When I first tested for my first license, I didn't realize there were so many kinds of tests and ended up taking the Distribution test instead of the Level 1 Treatment. Later that was changed to the Level 1 Treatment license. It should be clearly stated somewhere on the website what tests you need to take for which level. For example, if your facility is a level 1, then all the tests you need to take to get that level 1 should be listed as a requirement. If it's only 1 test, then that test should be specifically listed. If you need Distribution and Level 1 Treatment to get the proper license for the facility, both should be listed.
